Gas tax increase doubtful

By AL POST
MCN Staff Writer

Negotiations statewide on a possible increase in gas taxes to help pay for road improvements have become bogged down, 22nd District State Representative Gregory Pitoniak reported last week.

Pitoniak blamed Gov. John Engler for some of the problems on the gas tax, saying, "He is looking for a fall guy on this issue and appears to be ready to blame local politicians."

"I'm getting very concerned about area bridges, as well as roadways, that are in serious need of repair. But at the same time I am not too optimistic that something is about to happen soon," Pitoniak said.

"He is looking for a fall guy on this issue and appears to be ready to blame local politicians."

- Rep. Gregory Pitoniak

One of the reasons that Engler is not pushing for immediate action on the roads, Pitoniak said, is that the majority of the public is not crying out for a tax hike to pay for such improvements.

John Truscott, Engler's chief spokesman, admitted "chances are getting slimmer and slimmer that anything will get done."

He admitted the gas tax was still a possibility, but it is not looking good.

Detroit Metro area bridges that have been temporarily installed with plywood implants, are in serious need of permanent upgrades, Pitoniak said, as are many major and local roadways.

Meanwhile State Rep. Jon Jellema (R-Grand Haven), who heads the House Appropriations Subcommittee, worries if the state doesn't get a tax increase soon, it could be delayed for year or two.

"But we just can't wait that long," he says.

Pitoniak also feels that Engler will never ask for a tax hike as long as he believes he is still being looked upon as a vice presidential candidate next year.

But Truscott said (at least officially) the governor remains willing to move forward, despite the political consequences."

Since all 110 state house seats are up for re-election in 1996, most political observers feel that next year would not be a politically popular time to push for such a tax.

State lawmakers return to their Lansing offices next Tuesday and thus some action would have to be drafted by Oct. 1 to fill the void that will be caused by the expiring Build Michigan program.

But another problem is that Engler wants at least half of the tax money to go to state roads, since it only gets 30 percent of that dollar today.

But a number of local and county leaders have been fighting not to change that road tax dollar formula, since many local roads also need repairs and resurfacing.

Local residents won't have to wait long to see just how forceful Engler wishes to be on upgrading the local road-state highways, observers said.

Suspect arrested in brutal death of area groom-to-be

By KIMBERLY WOLOSKIE
MCN Staff Writer

A 15-year-old juvenile was arrested Saturday for the shooting of a Canton man Aug. 25 in Inkster.

According to Detective Greg Hill, the minor was arrested after being identified by several witnesses and arraigned over the holiday weekend out county on charges of first degree murder, attempted murder and felony firearms.

He is being held without bond and a preliminary exam has been scheduled for Sept. 13 in the 22nd District Court in Inkster. Hill credited the assistants of the Detective Bureau and members of the road patrol for the investigation and ultimate arrest of the suspect in custody.

The victim, Dale Farr, 23, was shot to death near his mother's home after picking up his younger brother, James, 19 just before 5 p.m. Aug. 25. The brothers left the home, located near Magnolia in Inkster, on their way to play tennis.

"The jeweler had called the morning Dale was shot to tell him his wedding rings were in," said Farr's aunt Sandy Pomerico of Garden City. "The family is having a hard time dealing with this."

"An argument occurred between the Farris when one of the subjects pulled out a gun and shot him," said Det. Hill.

not moving through the intersection. Farr allegedly began honking his horn before he actually passed the vehicle. A verbal altercation ensued between Farr and a group of teens outside the Fairway Food Party Store, 1139 Middlebelt in Inkster.

According to Diane, a witness whose name has been changed to protect her identity, Farr pulled into the Kentucky Fried Chicken parking lot and stepped out of the car to speak with the teens.

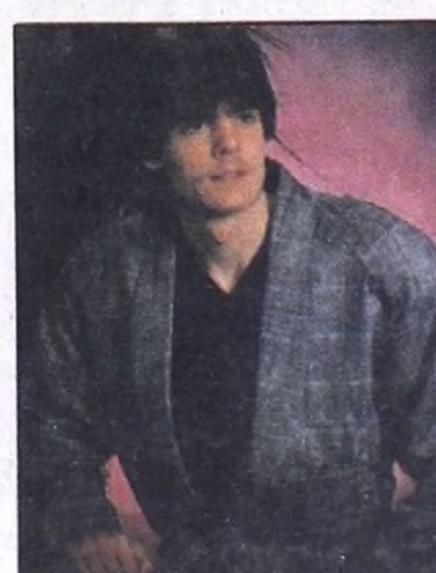

"I could hear them arguing, then I heard the shot, saw the guy fall," said Diane. "He got back up, stumbled again and fell down."

Farr, engaged to a 21-year-old Westland woman, was to be married next month. The 23-year-old was employed by HLF Furniture in Belleville.

"The jeweler had called the morning Dale was shot to tell him his wedding rings were in," said Farr's aunt Sandy Pomerico of Garden City. "The family is having a hard time dealing with this."

"An argument occurred between the Farris when one of the subjects pulled out a gun and shot him," said Det. Hill.

The family, however, takes little comfort in the continuation of the investigation while illegal activity continues in the area of the shooting.

"This is an on-going occurrence on a daily basis," said Diane of drug trafficking.

Funeral services were conducted Aug. 29 for Farr. "I've lived here for 32 years and this summer is the worst I've ever seen it," said Diane. "If it's not the shootings that are killing these kids, it's the drugs."

Pomerico said everyone in the Farr family is relieved someone was arrested.

Topless battle heads to court

By AL POST
MCN Staff Writer

The lawyer for the owner of the old "Silver Bullet Lounge" and the prospective owner of the topless dance bar "Fannys" have filed a joint-suit against Romulus, which is blocking the opening of a third topless dance tavern in the city.

The plaintiffs Richard Wojcik, trustee for the Rose Wojcik living trust (late tavern owner), and Edgar Inc., a Michigan Corporation that hopes to open Fannys at 37421 Huron River Drive, Romulus, filed the lawsuit in Michigan Circuit Court on Aug. 25.

The suit charges that the City Council action denying the transfer of the topless dancing permit "is a violation of the plaintiff's rights under the 1st and 14th Amendments of the U.S. Constitution and Article 1, Sec. 5 of the Michigan Constitution.

The plaintiff's also claim that Romulus "is engaging in gender based discrimination in determining when to confer a governmental benefit, since it was considered appropriate to allow male strippers, but not female topless dancing."

The suit quoted information gathered at the July 24 City Council meeting, at which it was revealed that an entertainment permit had been issued to a previous owner, Gampf Enterprises, for the purpose of allowing male strippers to entertain women, while their husbands, brothers, boyfriends or other male family members were out deer hunting.

City officials said the male performers only performed two or three nights a year.

The suit seeks to overturn the city's actions blocking the opening of the topless bar, as well as payment for their legal costs in the matter.

At the same time, the pastor of a neighboring church, the Romulus Wesleyan Church, is spearheading a personal petition drive for area residents to support the city's action in not allowing the topless bar to be open less than 500 feet from a church, city park and private homes.

Pastor Donald "Mike" McClellan said personal petition letters have been prepared by the anti-topless group and can be obtained for mailing to the City Council and State Liquor Commission.

Objectors need only sign the letters and send them on to the proper governmental unit.

Council primary set for Tuesday

By AL POST
MCN Staff Writer

A relatively small turnout is expected next Tuesday as Romulus conducts its city-wide primary to eliminate one of 15 candidates.

Since only five of the current seven council members are seeking re-election, most of the attention will be focused on the finishing places on Sept. 12.

Two long term council members, Mayor pro tem Mary Ann Banks and Councilman Noah (Pete) Bergeron, decided not to run for new terms.

But since the final match in November will also feature a rare but hotly contested mayoral race, the results next week could be a little misleading.

In addition little has been done by some of the first time candidates to set them apart from the others.

Since the mayor pro tem's seat will be open for a new occupant this fall, many eyes will be on the early front runners.

The five incumbents seeking re-election are Randolph Gear, Ellis T. Pennington, Michael A. Prybyla, Jimmie Raspberry and William Wadsworth.

A large crop of challengers (10 in all) will also be on the ballot, including the constant candidate Mary Hatten Collins, who openly feels that 1995 will give her the best shot of her life to join the city council.

Two years ago she tied with Prybyla for an open council seat, but lost when both candidates were asked to pick a slip out of a box. Prybyla picked the slip that stated "elected" and thus won in the classic city election.

Other challengers include city fireman Steven C. Bossidis, city Planning Commission Chairman William A. Crova, former councilman Brooker R. Edwards, environmentalist Tony A. Heimberger, Zoning Board of Appeals Chairman Stanley D. Kreft, anti-deep well activist Debbie Romak, retired businessman John Rynnar, city Cable Commissioner Gwen Sibert and long-term resident Jeannine Wafer-Frisson.

The polls will open at 7 a.m. and close at 8 p.m. Voters need only vote for 14 or less candidates. They will be instructed "if you make a mistake, return your ballot to the election official and obtain another. Do not attempt to erase a marking in error."

If for any reason a voter mistakenly votes for all 15, all the votes will be disqualified.

Write-in candidates will be allowed, but no serious candidate has announced any such effort city-wide.

Prybyla's garage burns

By AL POST
MCN Staff Writer

Quick action by local firemen kept an overnight fire that heavily damaged an unconnected garage at the home of Councilman Michael Prybyla early Tuesday from spreading to the official's house.

Prybyla, in a voice cracking with emotion Tuesday night, praised the quick action by his neighbor Firefighter Bob McCraight, who spotted the flaming garage about 1 a.m. Tuesday.

McCraight reportedly was backing his vehicle into his driveway, when he spotted the garage fire across the street from his home. Fire officials say McCraight was just returning from a vehicle fire call.

The veteran fireman alerted his fellow firemen and then successfully awoke the sleeping councilman and his wife, Midge.

Prybyla was thankful for the wake-up call, the quick action by the firefighters in extinguishing the fire and the fact that he had no vehicle in the garage.

Prybyla said he also feels even more comfortable today knowing that he has such a caring and professional neighbor.

"Who knows what would have happened if Bob had not spotted the fire that early. If it had been allowed to continue, it could always have spread to my home in the early morning hours when my wife and I were both asleep."

Fire Marshall David Allison reported that Prybyla has a hobby of refinishing furniture. He apparently had left some rags with linseed oil in the closed up garage, Allison said, and they self-ignited because of the warm temperatures in the closed up wooden frame garage.

Allison said no damage was caused to the Prybyla home. "In fact," he said, "the insulation on the electrical wires above the garage didn't even melt."

About a dozen firefighters responded to the fire.

Anti-graffiti law approved

By AL POST
MCN Staff Writer

A tough new anti-graffiti ordinance was passed unanimously Tuesday night by the Romulus City Council providing up to $500 in fines and 90 days in jail for anyone who violates the new law.

While Romulus has expressed pride in the fact that gang activity in the city is minimal, local businesses and viaducts have been plagued in the past with gang-style and other forms of graffiti.

High school volunteers in the past two years have joined hands with Youth Officer Rosemary Cooper in eradicating much of the blight.

But City Council members felt it was important also that a tougher law be put on the city's books to help prevent such problems in the future.

The intent and purpose of the ordinance is listed in its Section 2 stating "graffiti on public and private property is a blighting factor which not only depreciates the value of the property, but also the value of the adjacent and surrounding communities."

The ordinance also states that no graffiti may remain for more than seven calendar days on private property.

It continues "the council finds that graffiti is obnoxious and it is the intent of the city council to provide for the prohibition of the placement on public and private property."

The ordinance defines graffiti as any "unauthorized inscribing, spraying of paint or making of ink, chalk, dye or other similar substances on public or private buildings, structures and places."

The ordinance also states that no graffiti may remain for more than seven calendar days on private property.

"I believe the costs will be outweighed by the service to middle school parents," McPharlin told the board.

The costs will cover the equipment, shipping, installation and a training session.

Voice mail will be installed

A new Norstar voice mail phone system costing $7,700 has been approved for use in the Middle School of Romulus.

The Romulus School Board approved the expenditure Monday night. Art McPharlin, director of school technology, informed the board that the Middle School has been requesting the update for two years.

The Middle School currently has 14 telephone lines and 114 phones, McPharlin revealed.

Picnic treats

Hundreds of employees of businesses located in the Metro Airport Center of Romulus were treated to a festive picnic recently to mark the second anniversary of ownership by the Heitman Properties of Michigan LTD. Shown are Greg Greenberg, vice president of Heitman Properties (right) welcoming Mayor Beverly McAnally and David Paul, city building department chief and president of the Greater Romulus Chamber of Commerce. Marathon runner heading to Hawaii

By AL POST
MCN Staff Writer

Romulus marathon runner-in-the-making Kenneth Ogger is battling hard to raise $3,500 in pledges for the Leukemia Society of America and to be physically sharp enough to complete a grueling 26.2 mile marathon in Hawaii this December.

Ogger, 25, a veteran of four years in the U.S. Navy, always wanted to run in a marathon, but it wasn't until he received printed information on the leukemia run in Hawaii that he decided to make this his first run.

"I was training earlier for a Detroit marathon, but the added incentive to help leukemia patients made me switch locations," Ogger said.

Ogger, who works nights in the quality control division at the Lear Seating Co. plant in Romulus, said it also feels good to be part of a local marathon team headed by Pam Smith of Canton, who will walk in the marathon.

The Honolulu marathon attracted over 31,000 runners and walkers last year.

Another Romulus runner, Ryan Darnell, is slated to compete.

Assisting leukemia patients, such as Cathy Walsh, 32, of Westland, only comes natural to Ogger, who has dreams of becoming a nurse following the completion of his college education.

He has taken classes at Wayne County Community College and plans to continue his studies at Madonna University.

He also volunteers in the emergency room of Garden

Kenneth Ogger

City Hospital to expand his medical knowledge.

He recently received some extra enthusiasm for his December run when he talked to the husband of Cathy Walsh and found she just has undergone a successful bone marrow transplant.

Ogger, whose father Edwin Jr. lives in Wayne, admits he is not a salesman. But he is continually thrilled when he finds friends and strangers willing to donate or pledge to the leukemia fund after he talks to them.

"Our on-going team meetings in Royal Oak stress both the team concept and the strong possibility that a cure for leukemia and other cancers can be found by the year 2000," Ogger said.

Persons who wish to learn more about his efforts can call him at 595-6928. Residents wishing to donate to his marathon effort can mail checks to him in care of the Leukemia Society of America. His address is 39527 Montana Drive, Romulus, Mich. 48174.

Mayor, Raspberry clash at meeting

By AL POST
MCN Staff Writer

A verbal battle between Mayor Beverly McAnally and veteran Councilman Jimmie Raspberry followed by a walkout by Raspberry highlighted last week's public forum on the planned repaving of the Meadowdale Subdivision.

Robert McLachlan, president of the Halecreek Community Association, wasn't entirely pleased with the city's offer for upgrading the drain and roadway problems in the subdivision.

But McLachlan said he was slightly encouraged by the fact that the city had hiked its share of the repaving project from $255,000 to $352,000.

McLachlan said he realizes that the city's finances are not in the best of shape, thus believes that the association would support a binding contract with the city on a three-year improvement plan.

At an earlier meeting, association members demanded that the city install concrete not asphalt on the roads in the subdivision.

Next Wednesday McLachlan said he felt he would know more, because his group will be holding its monthly meeting at Hale Creek School and the repaving project will be the main issue on the agenda.

McLachlan was joined at the meeting by Ann Lammers and Roy Bailey, fellow association members.

Raspberry admits to storming out of the meeting following a series of "you're a liar" exchanges with McAnally.

Raspberry claimed he felt that McAnally was stalling on settling the subdivision's repaving matter until after the election, since she faces a challenge this November from former Mayor William Oakley.

Mayor's 8-year record reveals promises kept

When Belleville Mayor Glenn Silvenis took office eight years ago, he listed several projects that he planned to accomplish during his tenure.

Now, as he prepares to finish his second four-year term and retire from office, he can look back with pride at his completed list of accomplishments.

Few elected leaders can make the same claims — that all of their campaign promises have been fulfilled.

When Silvenis took office, the city appeared to have been left in a 1950s time warp. However, in the past eight years, Belleville has caught up to the '90s under Silvenis' leadership.

The mayor pledged to take action on two vacant Belleville buildings in the center of the city — the old Belv Hospital and the former A&P market — to encourage residential development and to enhance the downtown area. These were all accomplished — the vacant hospital was razed, a clinic is remodeling the former market, two residential developments are being constructed and the Streetscape gave new life to the city and inspired a wave of remodeling and renovations in the city. In addition, an old lake front marina was demolished and development plans are under way for the site.

Silvenis plans to spend more time with his family, an activity that had become increasingly difficult as the mayor spent more and more time on city business.

Congratulations, Glenn. We are confident that those who follow in your footsteps will have a firm foundation on which to build.

Primary to provide voting preview

Labor Day is over.

A primary for 15 council candidates is slated for next Tuesday in Romulus.

Political signs are popping up all over the city.

Mayor Beverly McAnalley and her opponent former Mayor William Oakley have successfully conducted opening fund raisers.

Needless to say the political season has opened in the usually quiet city races and the intensity is expected to increase within days.

McAnalley has already opened her campaign headquarters downtown. She jokes "this year we even have indoor plumbing." Her comment is actually an understatement, because in the past her headquarters has been located in a trailer, but this year is housed in a large Goddard Road building.

Oakley is slated to open his headquarters on Wayne Road, near Goddard Road, in fact it may be open by the time this column appears on the streets of Romulus.

Oakley forces had one minor obstacle to overcome at a recent fund raiser conducted at the Progressive Club. They found a huge McAnalley re-election sign less than 100 yards from the club's entrance way.

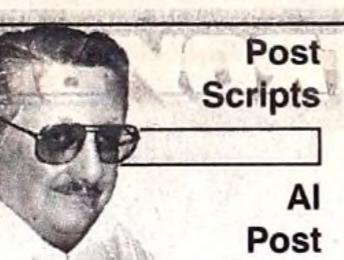

Not too surprisingly those attending the Oakley function never saw the sign that Friday night. No, a massive fog did not roll in. But two large garbage trucks and a massive American flag blocked any view of the sign that night.

Both sides outwardly express tremendous confidence in their chances of winning this November.

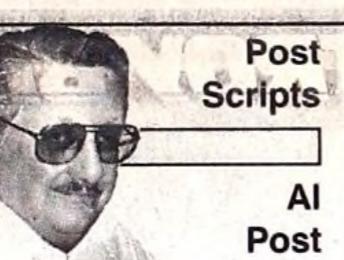

But in the meantime, some political stalwarts will be watching the relatively quiet council primary, that will eliminate only one of the 15 signed on candidates.

While only one will be forced out, most council candidates will be watching intently to see what place they finish. A number will be watching with added interest to see how veteran Councilman Randolph Gear fares in this early race.

A number of political veterans took exception to an

To the editor:

My gripe: airplanes. Do not get me wrong - I love to fly and have flown many miles by commercial airlines.

But I do not love those late afternoon - early evening flights that flush or empty toilet tanks on my person and our car parked in our driveway.

We have no garage. Talk about pollution and unsanitary conditions. How about the planes that do this? The little green particles little children out playing and having this land on them?

Is anyone else bothered with this? It used to always be green in color but now it is also brown colored.

Budget needs balancing

To the editor:

Before its summer recess, Congress passed the Fiscal Year 1996 (FY 96) Budget Resolution. This is a document that sets federal spending targets, but does not actually decide what each federal program, agency or department receives. It is a broad outline of future expenditures. Congress held the line on spending to an annual 3 percent increase over the next seven years.

Passing the Budget Resolution was the first step in an important process — balancing the federal budget for the benefit of our country, state, fellow citizens, and future generations of Americans. This important goal is achieved by 2002 (through spending restraint, not tax increases) if Congress can stick to its targets when crafting the final budget, due to the President (ideally) by Oct. 1. However, that will be difficult.

The next steps involve many Congressional committees deciding what programs will get cut, eliminated, modified or merged with others, to reach the spending goals set earlier this summer. And then the two chambers — the U.S. Senate and House of Representatives — have to reconcile their differences before the final budget is ready for the President's signature.

In the next few weeks, those who oppose balancing the federal budget will attempt to derail the courageous first step Congress has taken. You need to let your elected representatives in the U.S. Senate and House of Representatives know of your support for the federal balanced budget. Others, such as the U.S. Chamber of Commerce and The Business Roundtable have supported Congress' move towards a balanced budget for some time and are continuing their grassroots efforts.

A balanced federal budget has many salutary effects on our economy, to the benefit of all, but here are just a few of the better known:

Less government crowding out: The elimination of the budget deficit would mean that the federal government will borrow less credit, making more funds available to the private sector.

Higher investment: We will be ensuring future economic activity and vitality.

Lower interest rates: Not only will job providers benefit, but lower interest rates will occur in the consumer markets as well (up to a 2 percentage point drop).

Greater productivity: Balancing the budget would allow job providers access to more capital, allowing American workers access to productivity enhancing tools, and appropriately raising their standard of living.

Reduced burden on future generations: It is fundamentally unfair to leave future generations with $18,000 of personal debt each (and rising every year), for spending that for most began before they were born.

There is an opportunity this year to fix the budget problem, and to make the federal government abide by the same rule businesses and households do — balancing its budget. It is in all our interests to support those in Congress who have courageously set out to bring federal spending in-line with

Smoke screen

Sponsorship by tobacco firms questioned

After President Bill Clinton announced plans to issue executive orders to combat teenage smoking, some questioned his proposal to ban cigarette brand sponsorship of sporting events.

Especially hard hit would be motor sports which receive millions from the tobacco industry.

Proponents of the move claim that cigarette advertisements encourage all citizens, including teen-agers, to smoke cigarettes and the tie-in with popular sporting events down-plays the hazardous risks of smoking and, thereby, send a wrong signal to teen-agers.

Opponents of the action claim that cigarette brand sponsoring of sporting events is simply an attempt by the tobacco industry to promote good will and draw more dynamic competition to these events for both smokers and nonsmokers.

Little or no evidence exists that prove teenagers are in any way influenced by sports advertising. The whole affair is just a ploy to detract attention away from other more troubling issues such as illegal drugs, foreign policy and governmental fiscal problems, they say.

Do you support the plan to ban cigarette brand sports advertising? If so, Dial 1-900-910-9099 (EID XXXX) and enter "1."

Do you oppose the plan to ban cigarette brand sponsored sporting events? If so, Dial 1-900-910-9099 (EID XXXX) and enter "2."

Those who wish to add comments with their answers should dial 1-900-716-4888 instead of the number listed above.

Cost for participating in the tally is 99 cents and the cost of any optional comments will be added and billed on your telephone statement. Individuals must be 18 to participate.

Note: Results of the Federal Tax Reform survey were: Tally to keep the current system, 1 percent; tallies for a flat tax system, 44 percent, and tallies for a consumptive tax system, 55 percent.

Could 'none of above' be voters' choice?

By Paul M. Weyrich, president Free Congress Foundation

The conviction this week of Rep. Mel Reynolds (D-Ill.) on charges he had sex with a minor and that he tried to cover up the matter illustrates why many voters have become disillusioned with the political process.

When first elected in 1992, Mel Reynolds was the kind of politician who looked better by virtue of the incumbent he opposed. Southside Chicago had long been represented by Gus Savage, a black Democratic who did not hesitate to play the race card to win votes. Redistricting and Savage's own antics allowed Reynolds, who presented himself as a new "reform" candidate, to win the Democratic nomination. Mr. Reynolds was young and personable, a Rhodes Scholar, and an associate of the Kennedy family.

Indicted last August on charges he had sex with a 16-year-old campaign worker, the trial was postponed until this summer. Not until this week was Rep. Reynolds convicted on all counts including obstruction of justice and solicitation of child pornography.

The fact that Mr. Reynolds

could win reelection with 98 percent of the vote last fall, after the charges against him were made public, is an indictment of the American political system. The 1994 Illinois primary was held in March. No Republican had come forth to run against Mr. Reynolds and the only candidate on the general election ballot was an unknown independent. It is unreasonable to expect voters to cast a vote for a candidate they know nothing about and they didn't.

What is reasonable is to offer voters a line on the ballot marked "None of the Above." If voters did not like the candidate or candidates they were presented with, they could cast their ballot for NOTA. If a plurality of the voters select the NOTA line, then a new election with new candidates would be held.

While many voters might have opted to give Mr. Reynolds the benefit of the doubt, there are many who would prefer the chance to call for a new election with new candidates. That is why we need NOTA lines on ballots.

Now, bills to establish a non-binding NOTA are pending in the state legislatures of Michigan and Ohio. State Rep. Greg Kaza (R), the sponsor of the NOTA bill in Michigan, actually campaigned last year by giving NOTA stickers to voters who were dissatisfied with him and his opponent. In Ohio, State Rep. Rhine McLin (D), explains her sponsorship of a NOTA bill this way: "Our elected officials, myself included, would be held to a higher standard of accountability as will the electorate."

A non-binding NOTA is a good first step, but there are some leaders willing to go further. Rep. Peter Hoekstra (R-MI) is a strong proponent of a binding NOTA in races for Federal office. It is part of his Voters' Bill of Rights which includes national advisory referendum and recall. Hoekstra believes elections should allow voters to decide not only what issues they want addressed but which candidates are to be trusted with addressing them. Unfortunately, that is not the way the process has been working given that too many elections are decided on who is the least objectionable candidate, rather than the best choice.

Many voters have become disillusioned with the political process. Some suggest voters expect too much from our leaders. But our expectations must be set high. Otherwise, we will get only mediocrity. By the fall of 1994, it had become clear to all to many people that Rep. Reynolds was not living up to those standards. That is why voters -- in Illinois and across America -- need the binding NOTA option on their ballot.

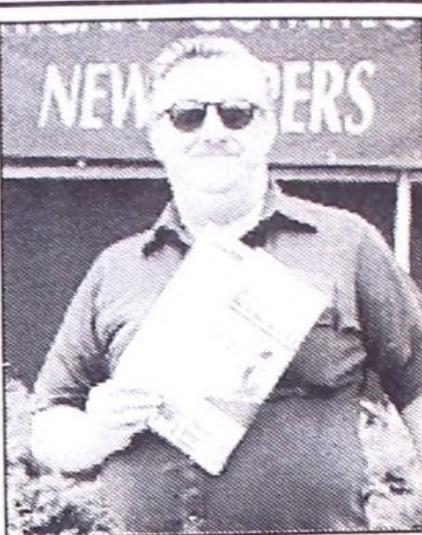

Signs of nature point to an early fall, according to Huron-Clinton Metroparks naturalist Glenn Dent, who serves at the Oakwoods Nature Center.

"We've seen migrating birds earlier this year than in past years," said Dent. "That points to an early fall."

During the remainder of September and October, Michigan Community Newspapers will report on the peak color periods in the state.

Fall color reaches its peak in mid-September in the Upper Peninsula and eight special tours have been mapped out by the Michigan Travel Bureau, one of which takes tourists from St. Ignace north to Whitefish Point and through Tahquamenon Falls State Park and south to the northern most point of Lake Michigan.

Inkster resident honored for scholastic achievement

Recently, State Rep. Thomas H. Kelly (D-Wayne) presented a special tribute to Lola Velazquez for her exceptional educational achievements.

Velazquez graduated from Henry Ford Community College with an associate degree in liberal arts, the culmination for many years of struggle to overcome both physical and personal challenges.

Kelly stated, "Her success is a tribute to her belief in herself and to her powers of perseverance in the face of adversity."

A resident of Inkster, Lola Velazquez has triumphed where many with fewer obstacles would have simply given up. Henry Ford Community College's Special Needs Program was the perfect complement to Lola's "never say die" attitude. The program provided a note-taking service for her classes, tutors, and taped textbooks. Kelly noted, "these aids" only partly compensated for her problems. Lola's faith and indomitable spirit were the main forces in her achievements."

A 1969 graduate of Robichaud High School in Dearborn Heights, Lola recognized that her career options were not challenging her abilities. Rather than dwell on her disabilities of being legally blind, suffering from chronic arthritis and other ailments, she set out to earn a college degree. She overcame the trials and tribulations of transportation, financing and the need to care for her ailing father.

Lola said, "the friends she made along the way provided valuable support and advice." In addition to her personal achievement, she has also been unselfish with her time by supporting the Downriver Association for the Blind, the American Council for the Blind and the United Ostomy Association. She also volunteers her services to the Heritage Hospital.

Her success is a tribute to her belief in herself and to her powers of perseverance in the face of adversity.

State senator challenges Legislature, Kevorkian

State Senator Jim Berryman (D-Adrian) has asked Jack Kevorkian to agree to suspend further assisted-suicide activity if the Legislature passes and the Governor signs Berryman's Senate Bill 640, regulating physician-assisted suicide, should voters approve the measure in the November 1996 general election.

"I am asking the Legislature, the Governor and Dr.

Kevorkian to let the people of Michigan finally settle this contentious and critical issue," said Berryman. "I don't believe government belongs at our deathbed, dictating the level of pain each of us must tolerate. This bill lets the people - not the politicians - decide."

Berryman said Attorney Geoffrey Feiger agreed to carry his proposal to Kevorkian, seeking Kevorkian's commitment to suspend attendance at any further suicides if the Legislature and Governor Engler approved Berryman's bill and let Michigan citizens vote on the issue.

"If Dr. Kevorkian agrees to halt his activities, I would hope the Legislature and Governor would act as quickly as they did to pass the ineffectual assisted-suicide ban in approving SB 640," said Berryman.

"If the Legislature or Governor Engler says no, they're really saying the public should have no voice in this, and they'd rather have Dr. Kevorkian acting on his own."

Berryman's bill would allow a terminally ill adult to request of his or her physician medication to end the patient's life in a humane and dignified manner. Honoring the request would require a medical second opinion and two witnesses. Assisted-suicide committed outside the confines of the statue would be a four-year felony.

Head Start director completes programs

Toni Hartke, director of Out Wayne County Head Start, is one of 84 Head Start directors from around the nation who have successfully completed the nationally acclaimed Head Start-Johnson & Johnson Management Fellows Program.

Conducted annually at UCLA's Anderson School of Management in Los Angeles, the program enrolls the country's top Head Start directors who are selected by a panel of educators and leaders from the child care community.

"The Head Start-Johnson & Johnson Management Fellows Program gives participants the tools to help them achieve maximum efficiency from the dollars invested in Head Start," said Helen Taylor, associate commissioner, Head Start Bureau. "Fellows who complete this program return home and share their knowledge with other Head Start managers. The idea is to create a ripple effect throughout the entire community."

Head Start has provided education, health and other services to over 13 million low-income children and their families since its launch in 1965. Today, Head Start enrolls over 740,000 children in all 50 states and has an operating budget over $3.2 billion. This expansion has created new challenges and opportunities for the hundreds of Head Start directors across the United States.

Wayne State University President David Adamany has announced the appointment of Tilden G. Edelstein as academic vice president, effective Sept. 18.

Edelstein, currently professor of history at State University of New York (SUNY) at Stony Brook, has 22 years of experience in the administrative ranks at SUNY and Rutgers University.

Edelstein was provost and executive vice president for academic affairs at Stony Brook, 1992-94, previously served three months as acting president in 1990 and, from 1989 to 1992, served as provost and academic vice president.

He was dean of the faculty of arts and sciences at Rutgers, the State University of New Jersey-New Brunswick campus, from 1984 to 1989.

Good news Almanac predicts light snowfall for winter

By JOAN DYER-ZINNER
MCN Managing Editor

It's good news for commuters and people with long sidewalks and driveways, but it's bad news for skiers and snowmobilers - below normal snowfall is predicted this winter in the Midwest.

According to the 204th edition of The Old Farmer's Almanac, there will be below normal snowfall for lower Michigan and the southern Great Lakes region.

The period from November through March is expected to be much milder than normal with below-normal precipitation and snowfall. December will see both wintry weather and unusually mild periods, according to the almanac.

The general weather forecast calls for above-normal temperatures throughout most of the country. Only central Florida, the desert Southwest, the southwestern Rockies and the Pacific coast will be cooler than normal, according to the almanac.

Snowfall is expected to be well above normal in the mountainous areas of the country with normal amounts for northern New England across to the Northwest as well as the Colorado plateau. Below-normal snowfall is predicted from southern New England across the southern Great Lakes and through the lower Great Plains.

The almanac also answers the question of which is smarter, cats or dogs.

The Old Farmer's Almanac goes on sale Sept. 12.

Editor's note: Western Wayne County residents who have special techniques to predict winter weather (for example, the stripes on the woolly worms or the heaviness of animals' coats) may call Joan Dyer-Zinner at 729-4000 during regular business hours.

Old French Town days recreate 18th century life in state

By JOAN DYER-ZINNER
MCN Managing Editor

Dulcimer music, a marching fife and drum corps and units dressed in the uniforms of the late-1700s and early 1800s set the stage for the annual re-creation of Old French Town Days in Monroe.

Events are limited to the time period of the 18th century up to the War of 1812, the period when the community was a French-speaking settlement. The festival includes authentic craft displays, military pageantry, period music, voyageurs and games and is sponsored annually the Monroe County Historical Society and the North West Territory Alliance.

The event is staged in historic Hellenberg Park -- the site of two Battles of the Raisin River -- and the 1995 military host of the event was La Compagnie Campeau de la Milice de Detroit.

"Our unit -- the Campeau Detroit militia -- would have been made up of people living along the river, and, consequently, the soldiers would have had their families with them during their encampment. That's why we have many women in our group," said Linda Finch of Westland.

"In those days, the families probably would have participated in the encampment, much like, going to a county fair. Women would get together to display their crafts and visit," Finch said. "Other groups participating in Old French Town Days are more military."

The original unit was composed largely of French citizens between the ages of 16 and 60 with some 482 men enrolled in the militia in 1778. Today, the Campau unit presents the life, culture and experiences of the American Revolutionary War period in events throughout the Midwest.

At Old French Town Days

this year, Finch was part of a wedding party in a re-creation of an early Detroit marriage ceremony.

"I became interested in the historical presentations first as a spectator. I love history, and it looked very interesting," said Finch. "The camaraderie is wonderful. Everyone helps one another."

Approximately 12 years ago, Finch joined the Campau unit, bringing her two young sons along to the activities.

"The kids grew up in it, and they didn't know of any other way to camp other than cooking over a campfire and sleeping in a tent," Finch said.

Jerry Finch, who traces his time with the group to the age of 6, participated in the 1995 event in Monroe along with his mother and a friend.

"My favorite part of it is the food. There's nothing better than homemade beef stew cooked over an open fire," Jerry Finch said. "The rain never bothered me. The only negative thing I remember is being hurt in a staged battle."

Linda Finch displayed a tea box which would have accompanied soldiers or travelers, which contained a block of solid tea, a grater, spoon and maple sugar for a sweetener plus nutmeg and cinnamon for flavor.

She grows tansy, tarragon, oregano and three kinds of mint in her Westland garden, and has also made herb-flavored vinegar and maple syrup.

Longrifles, another one of the participants in Old French Town Days, because of his interest in history.

"This brings all of my hobbies together. I've always like to camp, I enjoy crafts and I have a love of history," Cornick said. "I took classes in blacksmithing, shoemaking and tin-smithing at Greenfield Village."

Now, Cornick proudly displays the shoes that he has made and the tin lanterns lighting his camp ground.

"I made a chandelier for our tent," Cornick said, noting that chandeliers are quite a rarity at the outdoor camp grounds. "In the evenings we sit around playing a 17th century dice game by candlelight."

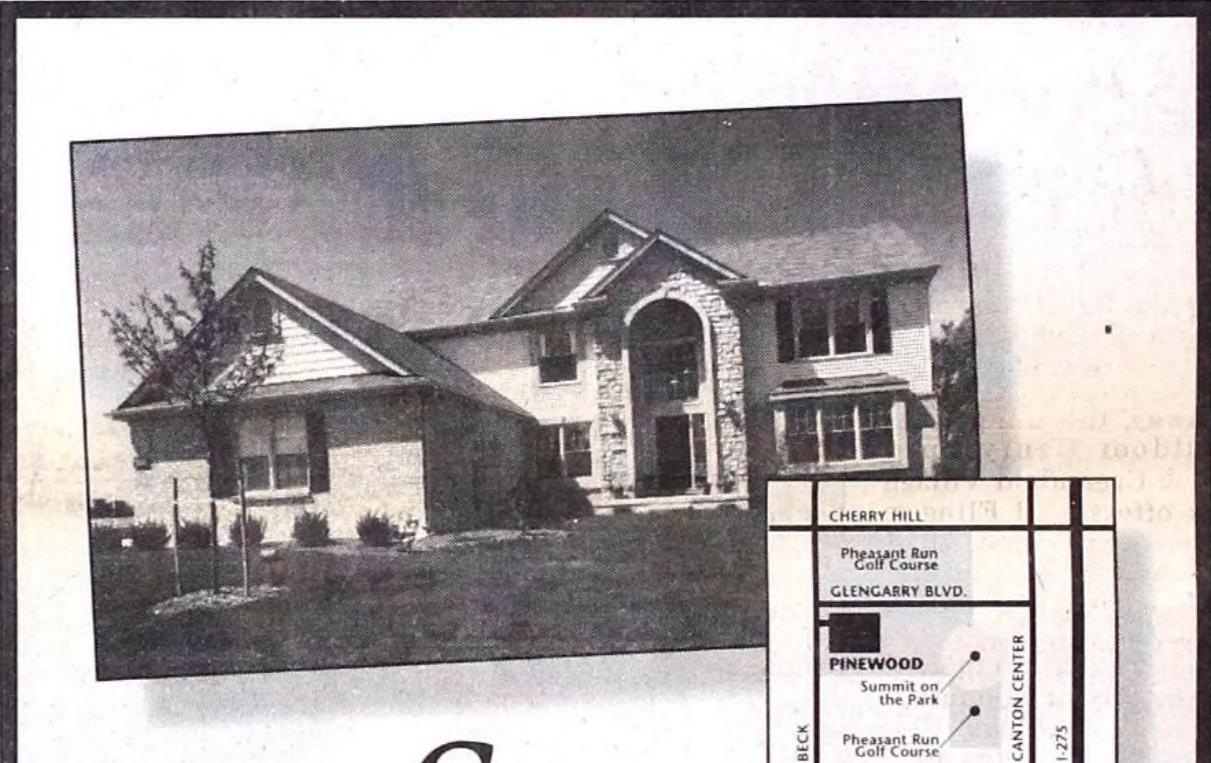

He has also constructed baskets of birch bark and has made knives.

"It's like taking a trip back in time. The pace is slow and it takes us back to the era when whatever you had was what you made yourself," Cornick said.

His wife, Cherie, also participates in the camping and does weaving, basketry and other crafts.

Also part of the activities were Les Voyageurs, representing the 18th century canoeists who paddled the freight canoes laden with the cargoes of the fur trade.

Other local participants were Elizabeth Darnell of Westland, Patrick Herbert and Leonard Darnell of Canton, David More of Wayne, Michael Stetler of Romulus, dulcimer player Charlene Helen Berry and Carol Hines of Garden City.

Area teens create music television show 'about nothing'

By MARGO DEWEY
MCN News Editor

It may be a new cable television show "about nothing," but the concept is catching the attention of teens in the Western Wayne County area.

Nick Craig, a Westland resident and the show producer/host, Matt Cornett, a Wayne resident and the assistant producer and Nicole Dorado, a Wayne resident and the switcher/editor, have brought to the airwaves All About Nothing.

This new show is hip hop and has a lot of bee bop, according to Craig.

"I came up with the idea when I was in 10th grade," said Craig. "I always wanted to do something in television and radio. I thought I would get a start by doing something in public access."

"Our school, Wayne Memorial High School, really doesn't have anything in regards to television where you can get a hands-on experience."

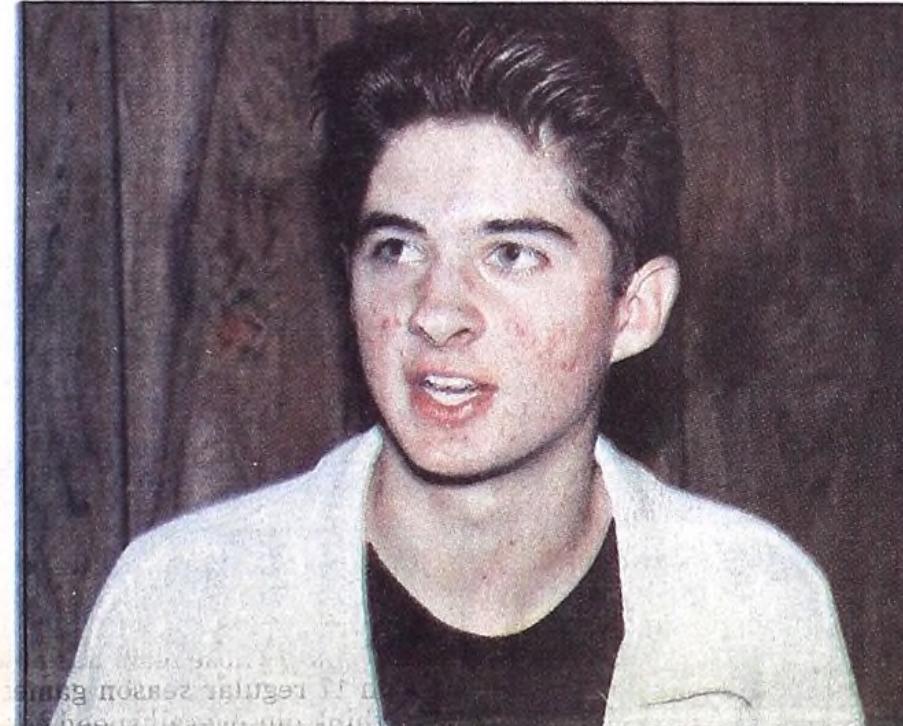

The production aspect of the show began in November of 1994. About Nothing is a local twist to a national video show, according to Craig.

"Record companies consider it somewhat like MTV but with more videos shown," said Craig. "What we do is show a video and then talk for three minutes about entertainment going on locally, nationally or around the world that pertains to kids our age."

The main thrust of the show targets the age bracket of 13-to-26-year-olds with an emphasis on modern, pop, rock and rap music.

"Anything that has a good beat we put on," said Craig. "It's an hour-long show, but with all that we pack into it, it really goes fast."

Craig, 17, is hoping his first attempt at creating a spin-off of the national music video shows will lead him to potential job opportunities in the near future.

"Mainly I would like to start out in radio, but I will probably end up in video because radio is kind of hard to get a good job these days," said Craig. "I would like to go to MTV. My goal is to end up in New York one day."

For Cornett, 19, he has already started the second phase in his climb up the ladder to the helm of broadcasting. Cornett now attends Schoolcraft College with the hopes of attending Michigan State University to major in broadcasting.

"Once I complete my college education, my goal is to be a disc jockey on radio," said Cornett. "It's been a great experience working on this music video show because we actually put it together. What's happened is now every time I watch a show on television, you just notice what was edited together and you know how long it took to edit that piece. "It takes us forever to edit one show."

Dorado, who is now a senior at Wayne Memorial High School, said she really hasn't made up her mind what direction she is going to take once she graduates.

"I'm having a lot of fun, but I don't know if I want to get involved in television," said Dorado. "I like working with the camera."

Craig said what he hopes to achieve with his show is introduce more music videos to youths and adults instead of having all the in-between talk as with some national music shows.

"MTV is so commercialized," Craig said. "They have taken a lot away from music videos because of their disc jockey talking so much in between videos. That's where we're trying to fill in. We do interviews of bands and musicians from time to time. Right now we're working on getting an interview with the Power

I came up with the idea when I was in 10th grade. I always wanted to do something in television and radio. I thought I would get a start by doing something in public access.

- Nick Craig

Rangers.

"We're trying to offer a little off-the-wall entertainment as well as the popular stuff everyone likes."

What message does Craig hope his viewers will receive from All About Nothing?

"I just want them to know it's a fun show that they can relate to and enjoy," said Craig.

All About Nothing airs 7 p.m. and 10 p.m. on Westland Cable Channel 18 Thursdays and on Channel 21 Wayne Cable 6:30 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. Mondays.

Nick Craig is able to use the video facilities at Westland Cable for two days a week. He believes the experience of creating his own video show now at the age of 17 will allow him more opportunities to achieve a professional job in the near future with MTV or other major television networks. A typical day for the All About Nothing crew includes interviewing guests for the show, editing footage they receive from music groups for the program, coordinating in between spots to introduce each video and shooting live events. The program is one hour in length. MCN photo by Kimberly Woloskie

Rockets rally to even score with Howell, 24-7

By TOM MOORADIAN
MCN Staff Writer

Westland John Glenn football players apparently don't forget.

The Rockets avenged a 32-0 shellacking posted to their record a year ago by Howell by beating the Highlanders 24-7 Friday night before the home crowd in the season's opener.

But Coach Chuck Gordon and the Rockets needed a second-half rally to overcome a 7-3 first-half deficit. Glenn erupted for two TDs in the third quarter and struck again in the fourth to put the game out of reach.

It looked like another long night for Glenn as the Highlanders cashed in on the opening kickoff which bounced off a Rocket player. The visitors recovered the ball near midfield and turned the turnover into their only score of the evening.

It took Howell quarterback Matt Ventura four plays to cover the rest of the distance and score on a six-yard strike to tailback Josh Dukes. The Highlanders made good on the PAT.

Late in the second quarter and after a quarterback change, Glenn made overtures to get on the scoreboard. Sophomore quarterback Justin Berent, mixing handoffs to tailback Jay Jackson, and passes managed to move the Rockets. However, it was a Howell miscue in the form of a fumble recovered by Mike Sosnowski that led to the Rockets first score.

With less than 10 seconds remaining in the half, Gordon decided that he would settle for a field goal, and he sent in Steve Paling who booted a 33-yarder right through the uprights.

The two teams settled for a 7-3 halftime score.

But, after the half, the Westlanders came back to dominate the next two quarters. Berent engineered a midfield drive that culminated with senior Jay Jackson's 1-yard TD run.

Paling, who successfully kicked the field goal, also made good on three subsequent point-after attempts.

Also in the third quarter, the Westlanders drove 55-yards with Berent scoring from the one, leaping over center Jeff Cook for the touchdown.

Jackson picked up his second TD of the evening in the fourth quarter as the deceptive tailback went in from the one. The TD capped a 60-yard drive that ate up nearly 10 minutes of the quarter.

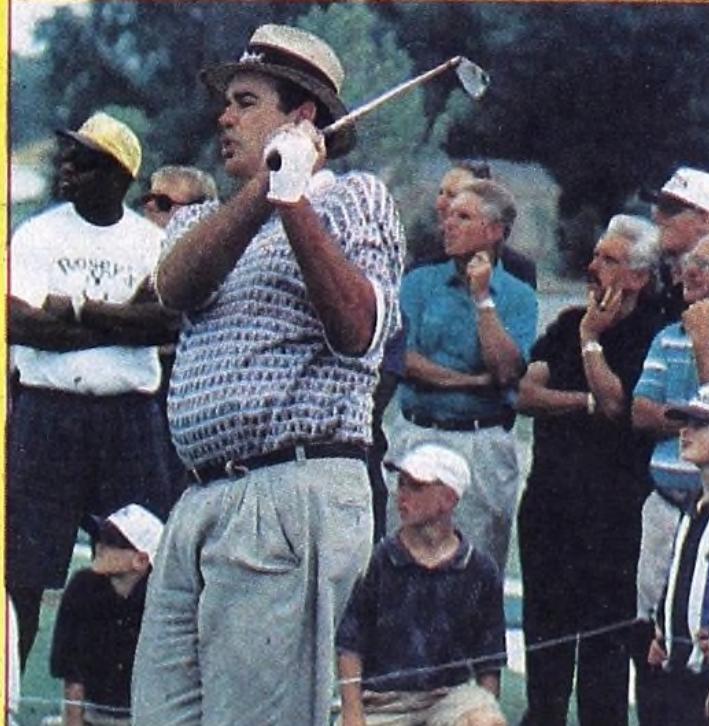

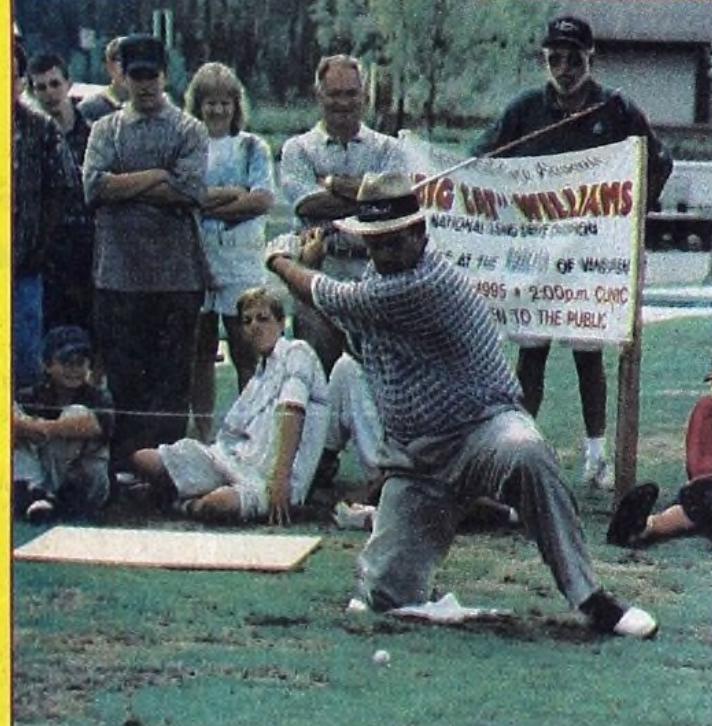

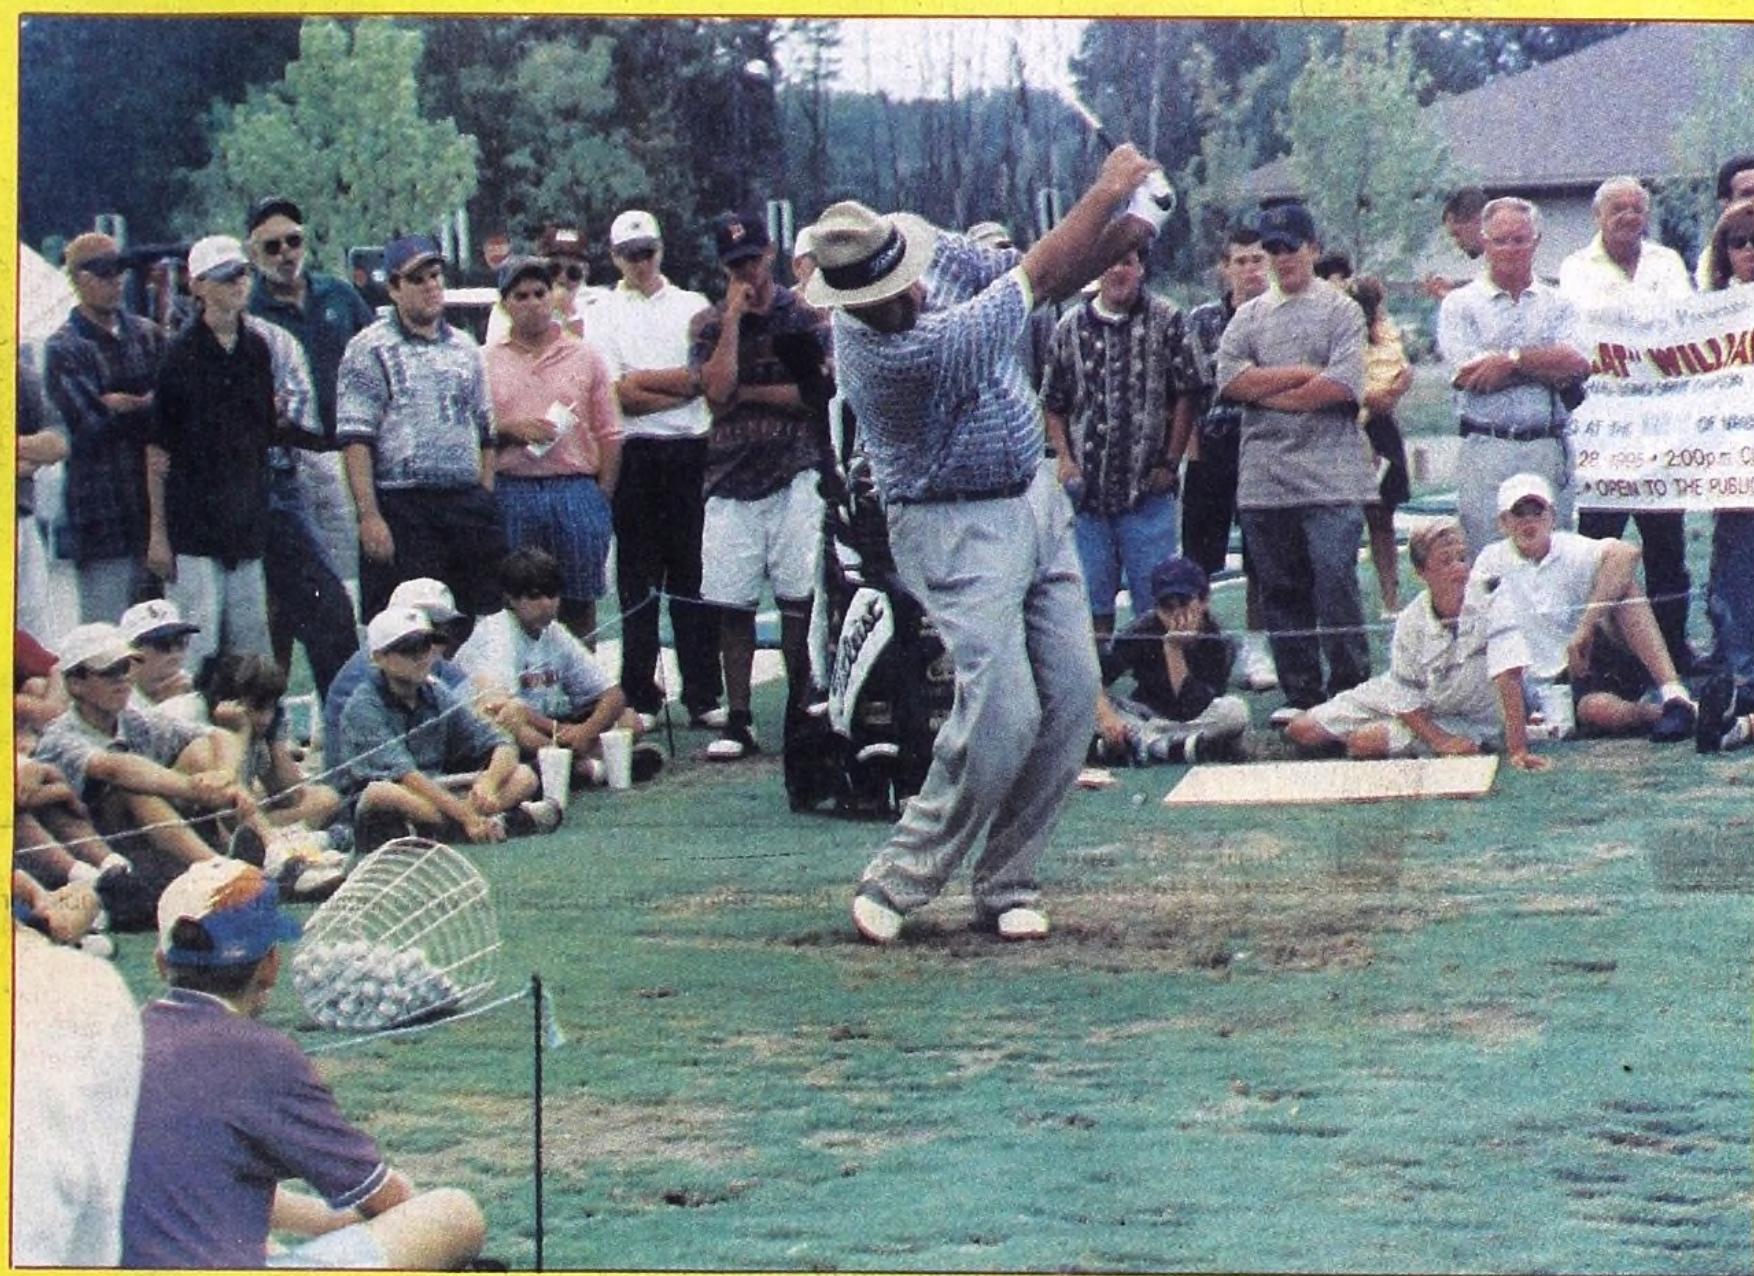

Jackson finished the game with a pair of TDs and 97 yards rushing on 21 attempts. He also had one interception that erased a serious Howell scoring threat. Jason Butler chipped in 30 yards on eight tries.

Defensively, the Rockets received an outstanding effort from end Keith King who had two sacks of the quarterback while linebacker Jeff Cook, a 6-1, 220-pound senior also stood out.

Glenn is also at home Friday night, hosting Walled Lake Western. Western is coming to town with a 17-7 victory over Novi in their season's debut. Kickoff is 7:30 p.m.

Glenn harrier wins Huron quad

By TOM MOORADIAN
MCN Staff Writer

As a sophomore, Westland John Glenn's Joe Wojtowicz was one of the premier distance runners in the area.

Unfortunately, in the stretch of the 1994 campaign, the then 15-year-old Wojtowicz suffered from back spasms which sidelined him during the Western Lakes Conference championships and also for the state regional finals.

Wojtowicz is back this year at full strength and ready to go. He proved it last week as the junior harrier led the pack at the season-opening Ann Arbor Huron quadrangular meet.

Wojtowicz ran away with top honors, winning the 5,000-meter run in an excellent 18:26.

He toured the distance in sizzling 90-plus degree heat and helped the Rockets finish third overall.

"Joe looked good," said Glenn's Jess Shough, a veteran track and cross country coach. "He trailed after the first mile, then took command during the second mile, and he never looked back after that."

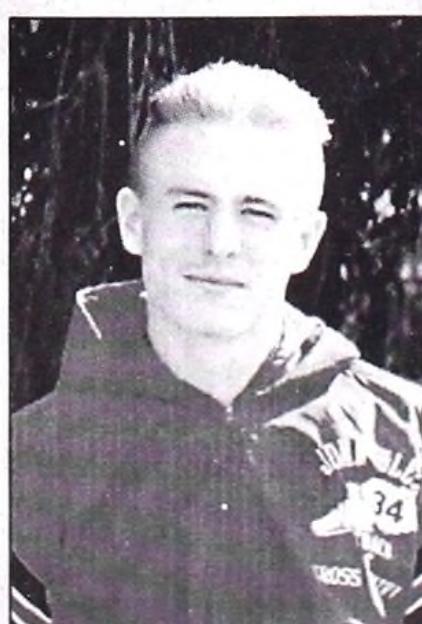

Wojtowicz will get an opportunity to compete against some of the best in the state on Saturday when Glenn travels to Dearborn to compete in the Dearborn Invitational.

Dearborn is expected to give Monroe, the defending champ, and Fordson, always a threat when it comes to cross country, a battle for the Mega Conference, Red Division, title this year.

Also making appearances at Dearborn are Birmingham Groves, Flint Northwestern, Taylor Truman, Edsel Ford, Gabriel Richard and Redford Union will only send women's teams to the meet.

In the meantime, Ann Arbor Huron displayed overall depth in winning its own quad. The River Rats picked up 23 team points to win the meet. Howell runners were second with 57, while the Westlanders finished third with 76. East Lansing harriers rounded out the field. They had 98 points.

Glenn also got an excellent performance from Chris Gillen, who finished ninth (19:39). Teammate Tim Moore was 19th (21:09) and other Rockets whose scores counted included: Mark Lovett, 21st (21:24) and Paul Galbraith, 26th (22:11).

Wojtowicz ran away with top honors, winning the 5,000-meter run in an excellent 18:26.

Gold scores 3 TDs in 42-0 shutout

By TOM MOORADIAN
MCN Staff Writer

If Belleville's 42-0 victory over a highly-touted Plymouth-Salem team Friday night is any indication of "things to come", watch out. The Tigers may have another unbeatable Mega Conference Red Division team this season.

And the Tigers just may travel beyond the first round of the Class AA playoffs this season.

But, first things first.

"I really was surprised at the way we went about our business and got the job done (against Salem)," said Coach LaPointe, whose team has now won 17 regular season games. "I think our overall speed contributed to our success in this first game."

But LaPointe stressed that "it was only a first game."

"Our league - with Monroe, Fordson and Wayne Memorial - has a lot of talent in it this year. And they will be gunning for us, you can be sure of that," LaPointe warned.

Belleville will place its conference title on the block Friday night when Wyandotte invades Tiger Stadium. It is a home opener for Belleville.

Wyandotte had an excellent tuneup in its opener against Trenton. The Bruins came away with a lopsided 33-7 victory.

The game is not a crossover contest as published in some publications.

"With Romulus coming into this conference this year," explained LaPointe, "there are no crossover games in our league this year."

Salem's problems were many and surfaced early. The Rocks' defense couldn't contain All-Area running back Ian

"I really was surprised at the way we went about our business and got the job done (against Salem)."

- Coach LaPointe

Gold, who rushed for 166 yards on 10 carries and scored three of the Tigers' touchdowns.

Gold scored on runs of 19, 40 and 50 yards.

Senior running back Joe Manuel, who also was an All-Area selection a year ago, scored his first of the year TD on a 39-yard sprint while Mike Williams also contributed touchdowns of 19 and 34 yards in the Belleville triumph.

"He (Gold) had an outstanding first-game," LaPointe noted. "And our line (offense) did an exceptional job opening the holes for the backfield."

Belleville exploded to a 21-0 advantage in the first quarter and added three more touchdowns in the second frame to seal the victory before the half.

Quarterback John Kroger, a junior, was in charge all the way, LaPointe added.

Belleville's cornerback Gary VonGerichten and Chris Jenkins, a 6-4, 240-pound tackle, were just a couple of good reasons why the Rocks failed to break into the scoring column.

Plymouth-Salem will attempt to recover from its opening day shock Friday night at Northville. Kickoff is scheduled for 7:30 p.m.

Canton falls to Monroe in opener

Milford in their opener.

"We really don't know much about them (Central)," says Khoenle. "But I expect a good game."

Against Monroe, All-Area running back Ron Hunter generated most of the Chiefs' offense and scored both Canton touchdowns. Hunter picked up his first of the season off of a reverse that covered 55-yards, while quarterback Pat Nelson and Hunter hooked up on a 20-yard strike to account for the second Canton score.

Rob Gumber's attempt for the point-after after the first Canton TD was blocked. The Chiefs cashed in on a fake PAT for the two-point conversion after the second TD with a Nelson-to-Ken Kerfoot pass completion.

Although the Canton defense had their problems containing a physical and speedy Monroe offense, Khoenle said that two players - nose guard Shaun Dyer and linebacker Nick Kanaan stood out for the Chiefs.

District champs

The Westland Youth Athletic Association's Pony All-Stars swept through the Pony District Baseball Tournament, winning the title and advancing to the state playoffs at Mt. Pleasant where they lost their bid for the coveted crown. The All-Stars also placed third in the Wayne Summer Classic this season. Members of the team include: Coach Rory Jones (front row, from left), Steve Jones, Matt Mackiewicz, Doug Schober, Greg McCollum, Rob Remer, Nick Rogiero, Brent Proffer and coach Jack Cichocki; in the second row are Manager Dave Mackiewicz, Coach Perry Proffer, Dan Fedulchak, Chris O'Brien, Ryan Fisher, Dave Word, Mike Fisher, Dan Sadler, Jason Thomas, Nick Hudson and Lee Schober. Wearmaster retains softball title

Although they had a couple of close calls in the playoffs, Wearmaster Muffler managed to retain its Wayne Parks and Recreation softball title.

The defending champ edged Little Bill's Trophies 7-6 in a thrilling finale to repeat its championship run started a year ago.

The game almost got away from the champs.

Ahead 7-2 going into the bottom of the seventh, Wearmaster had difficulty putting their opponents away. Little Bill's staged a last-ditch seventh-inning rally and tilted the scoreboard for four runs to come within a run of forcing the issue into extra innings.

The challenger also had runners in scoring position, on second and third bases, with two away, when Wearmaster pitcher Brent McNabb got the final out on a flyball to outfielder Bill

Wagner who made the catch and sealed the victory.

Little Bill's got to the championship round by winning the Red Division title. They upset league champ, E & M Underground.

Wearmaster Muffler, representing the Blue Division, won the playoff title with a victory over Beechwood Clinic.

Other team members include: Greg Reynolds, Michael MacDonald, Bill Pledger Jr., Barton McNabb, Paul Sealik, Jim Zalewski, Sean McGeorge and Wagner and McNabb.

Belleville coach to rebuild team

Graduation took a big toll on Belleville High's cross country team.

Now, second-year head coach George Devore is looking at a squad that is thin in depth and lacks inexperience.

Last year's seventh-runner, Jim Benson, is the only holdover who has experienced varsity competition.

"It's going to be tough, especially since Dearborn and Fordson are loaded and Monroe always has an excellent team," warned Devore, who begins his second year as head coach on Saturday at the Schoolcraft Invitational. "We will have a lot of growing up to do very fast."

"If we don't, it isn't going to be a long season."

Robichaud didn't stand prayer of chance against St. Mary's

By TOM MOORADIAN
MCN Staff Writer

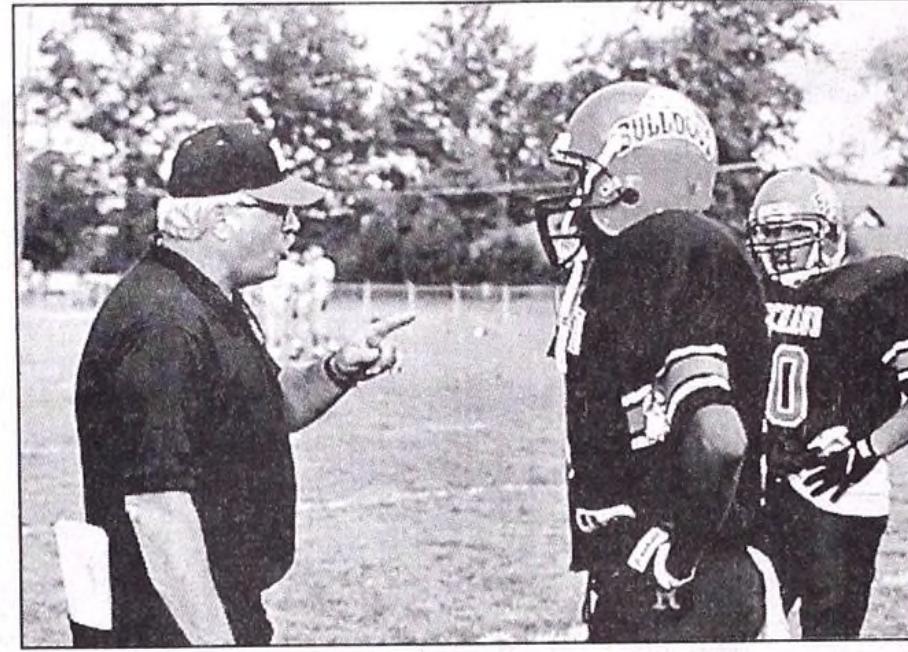

Robert Yauck has coached Robichaud football teams for almost three decades.

His teams have won a handful of Suburban Athletic Conference titles, a Class B state title, thanks to the help of former All-American Tyrone Wheatley, who went on to star for the University of Michigan and is presently with the New York Giants in the National Football League.

And never - repeat - never has Yauck seen a Robichaud team like the one that took to the field Friday afternoon against Monroe St. Mary's. The Bulldogs fumbled the ball or turned it over six of the 11 times they had possession and were humiliated 40-8 by the visitors.

"And this is the first Robichaud team I have ever coached that failed to hit. You can quote me as saying so. This was a very embarrassing defeat for me and this team and it isn't going to happen again," Yauck said, after he walked off the field at Robichaud carrying a 40-8 setback on his shoulders.

Robichaud will attempt to rebound on Friday, again before the home crowd, against Madison Heights Bishop Foley, which is coming off of an impressive opening day win over Clawson (27-13).

St. Mary coach Joe Sanderson said that he was also surprised at the outcome of the game with Robichaud.

"Our kids executed well and we dominated the line," said Sanderson afterwards. "Obviously we didn't expect what happened."

St. Mary's rolled to a 20-0 first half score after leading 7-0 at the end of the first quarter. The visitors were up 34-0 after three quarters. Monroe received a superlative effort out of running back Adam Tedora, who scored two of St. Mary's six TDs on runs of 18 and 31. Robichaud averted the shutout early in the fourth quarter when quarterback Ray Cook put together a sustained drive that covered approximately 70 yards. He eventually scored from the 1-yard line on a sneak. The sophomore QB also accounted for the two-point conversion.

Although "utterly disappointed in the team's overall performance," Yauck did single out full-back Jason Malloy, who moonlighted as a defensive tackle, "for an outstanding effort."

But that's about all the praise he was ready to dish out for anyone.

"Jason ran well and also was tough on defense," said Yauck. "But, this is the first time I have ever seen a Robichaud defense that didn't hit. It will not happen again or there will be a lot of guys riding the bench."

Romulus rookies take 2 in loss against Tigers

By LORI GILLESPIE
MCN Staff Writer

Playing their first match in the Mega League, the Romulus Eagles ladies tennis team lost 6-2 against the Belleville Tigers.

During the contest on Aug. 30, Romulus coach Dan Stearn said, "Other than the fact that they're beating up on us, I think we're doing OK for our first match. Our singles players have never played singles, and our doubles have never played varsity."

Belleville coach, Dave McLarney said, "We're doing good in doubles. Singles are okay, we're winning, but not like we should be."

Adding to the fact that they are new to the Mega League (Blue Division), Romulus has a very young team.

"We've only got two from our top 10 last year, and four from our doubles team," coach Stearn said. "We have talent, we just need experience. We also have to learn what it means to be in a league."

Two of the players who are back this year are co-captains Jennifer Kusibab and Angela Terry, both seniors.

"Last year was Jennifer's first year playing and she was named All-Area. She's playing number one singles this year. Terry is playing singles and on the fourth team doubles," according to coach Stearn.

Kusibab won her match against Lydia Brumgarten in three sets. The other point for Romulus came from the doubles team of Linda Ryzner and Yolonda Mattison, who also went three sets to win.

Coach Stearn stated, "Belleville is the league favorite this year. We're the rookies. We're looking for improvement, the wins will come. We started three years ago with new players, and we kept improving and turned into a darned good team. I think we can continue the tradition."

Even though they didn't win, Romulus did get a taste of what's to come in the Mega League.

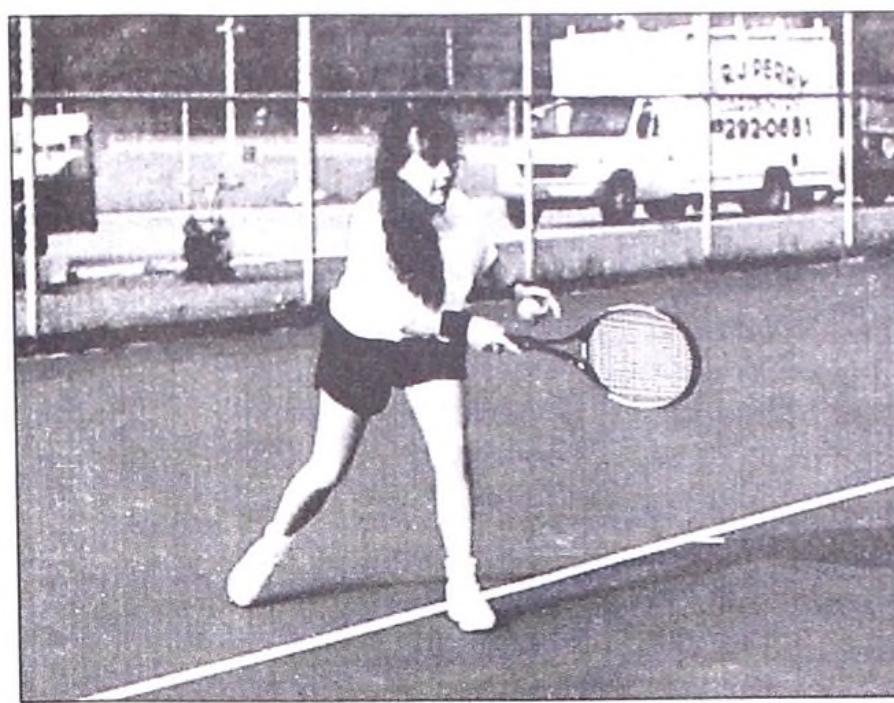

"The girls were nervous, Belleville's a good team. By the time we calmed down, Belleville was so far ahead we didn't have a chance. But, it did give us a real good idea of what we need to work on."

Plymouth-Salem ready to win every game

By LORI GILLESPIE
MCN Staff Writer

With the plan to win every game this season, the Plymouth-Salem Rocks are beginning their season.

"We want to win every game, but we know that's not a realistic goal," Rocks coach, Fred Thomann stated. "Our real goal is to compete in the Division and Conference and become the champions. We also want to play well at the tournament at the end of our season."

Last season, the Rocks were 15-7. Thomann said his team is working hard to achieve their goals.

"We're in the process of taking our game, and moving it up a bit. We need better defenders and we need to work on our offensive end. The girls need to learn when to make the shots when they get a scoring opportunity."

The Rocks are working hard on perfecting their game before they meet the teams. Thomann calls their toughest opponents Walled Lakes Central, Plymouth-Canton, and Northville, who had a 13-9 record last season and beat both Central and Canton according to Thomann.

"They will be pretty tough because we are the top four teams in our league. In non-league play, Ann Arbor Pioneers and Ann Arbor Huron will also be tough."

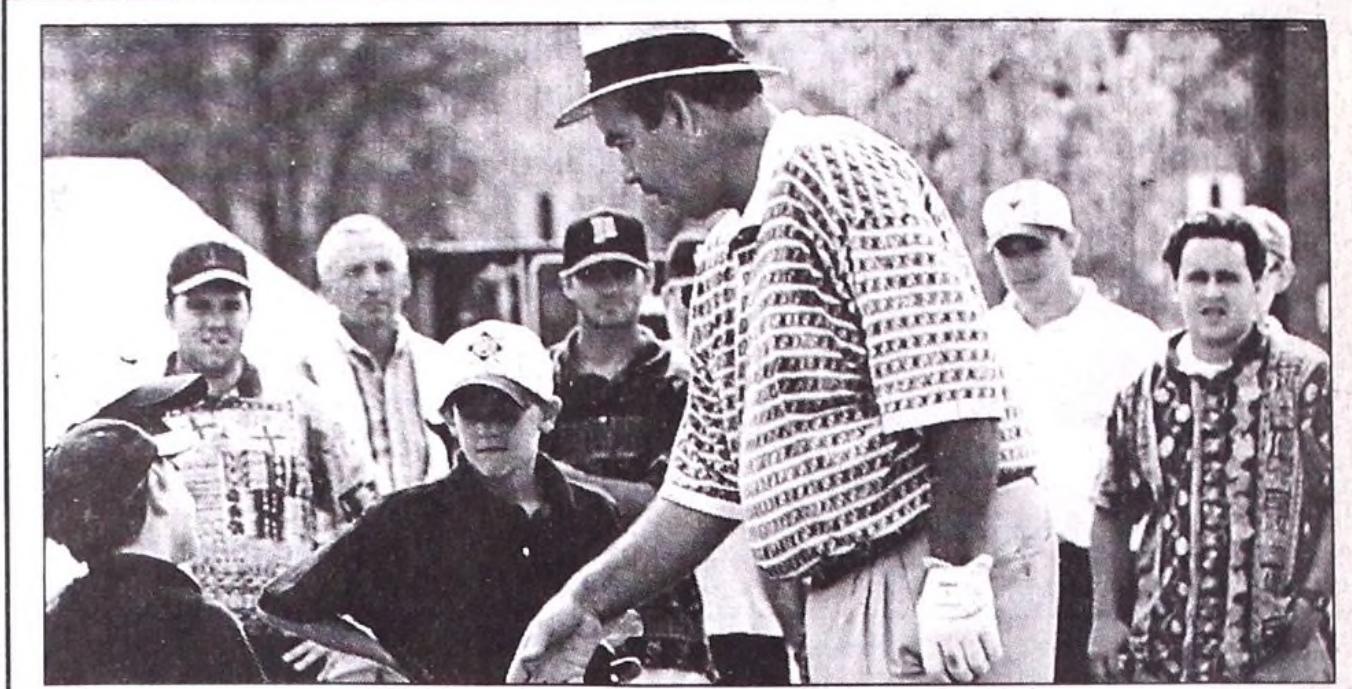

But, Thomann thinks his team will be ready. "We've really got a nice blend this year. We have veterans along with some younger players. And, we've got size and athleticism to work with. We're going to try to blend them all together to see what we come up with."

Their only weakness according to the coach is in defense, and knowing when to shoot and when not to shoot the ball.

The captains of this year's team are the seniors on the team, Shellye Sills, Nicole Van Hees, and Kelly Simpson.

According to Thomann, the standouts on the team are Sills, who was All-City last season, and Amanda Abraham, a sophomore who was named All-Division last year.

Eagles team are new kids on block

By LORI GILLESPIE
MCN Staff Writer

"Our goal this year is to be real competitive in the Mega League. We want to show well, not necessarily win, but play well," according to Romulus coach, Peter Hill.

Last season, the Lady Eagles came away with an 11-9 record. This season will probably be different.

"There will be more pressure being in the Mega League. We know very little about the teams we're going to be playing. Plus, all eyes will be on Romulus because it's our first year in the Mega. We're the new kids on the block," coach Hill stated.

Hill has a plan to help his girls succeed. "We need to learn to play team ball. We need to be organized and united to win. We also need to play good defense and improve individually."

The coach said the Eagle's toughest opponent could come in the form of Edsel Ford or Dearborn High School.

"They are both traditionally good schools. We plan on putting pressure on their point guards and messing up the flow of their entire offense. We need to play controlled basketball. We also need to control the tempo of the game and pound the boards. Our asset is in our size. We've probably only got one natural scorer."

The co-captains for the Eagles are, Stephanie Clummin and Natalie Wojtoikr.

When you are "the new kid on the block," it's hard to remain motivated knowing the other teams have been playing in the league a lot longer.

"I try to keep them motivated by showing them how to maximize their potential. That's the key to success. Plus, they need to work hard in practice."

Look out for the Lady Eagles on Sept. 5, when they take on Garden City at 5:30 p.m. game time, at home.

Free shots sponsored by Inkster sororities

A free immunization fair for Wayne County children is scheduled from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday at the Inkster Recreation Center, 2025 Middlebelt Road, north of Michigan Avenue.

The Sept. 9 event is sponsored by three national African-American public service sororities, Delta Sigma Theta, Alpha Kappa Alpha and Zeta Phi Beta, as part of the group's Partners in Action Second Annual Out-Wayne County Health and Safety Fair.

Co-sponsors of the event are the Inkster Teen Health Center and Wayne County Health Department.

Some 1,000 free vaccinations are expected to be dispensed, according to organizers.

Youngsters must be accompanied by a parent or guardian. Free refreshments and entertainment will be provided for participants.

"An unfortunate number of children are excluded from school for not getting immunized early," said Fair Chairperson Eunice Johnson, director of the Inkster Teen Health Center. "Our fair will provide this valuable service free and in a fun and friendly atmosphere that parent and child are sure to enjoy."

"Everyone is welcome. This is not just an Inkster residents only event," said Johnson. "And, too, though we primarily are targeting Out-Wayne County residents, no child needing services will be turned away."

Johnson noted that the event is also open to children from Belleville, Dearborn Heights, Romulus, Taylor, Wayne, Westland, Canton, Huron, Sumpter and Van Buren Township as well as to youngsters in Inkster.

For additional information, call Johnson at 729-8336.

Salem girl's basketball solid as a rock in season opener

By LORI GILLESPIE
MCN Staff Writer

The Salem Girl's basketball team now have a 1-0 record with a win against Rochester Adams.

The Rocks warmed up to the song, This is How We Do It, by Montell Jordan before the Aug. 31 game. And, from the tip-off to the end of the game, they showed Adams how it's done.

During the first quarter, Rochester Adams kept the score close, although Salem stayed ahead of them by at least two points.

Salem player, senior Amanda Pruitt scored eight, senior Shellye Sills scored six, and sophomore Amanda Abraham threw in two foul shots for good measure.

At the end of the first quarter, the score was 16-12, in favor of Salem.

During the break in play, Sills told the Rocks to settle down and just play their game.

Adams seemed to speed up the game in the second quarter, although the Rocks still seemed to have control.

After making one foul shot, and watching the Rocks' Janelle Sterling sink two, Adams came back with a basket from the three point line.

Salem decided Adams was too close for comfort at only two points back, and went on an eight point scoring streak.

Adams came back with a 10 point scoring streak of their own, tying the score at 28 going into the half.

Salem coach, Fred Thomann took his team out of the gymnasium to give them a pep talk.

Adams managed to keep things tied up, through the first few minutes of the third quarter.

That's when coach Thomann's pep talk seemed to sink in, with his girls scoring eight of the nine points registered. The score at the end of the third quarter was 40-33, with Salem on the high end.

The fourth quarter found Adams fighting back, scoring eight points in the first four minutes of the quarter.

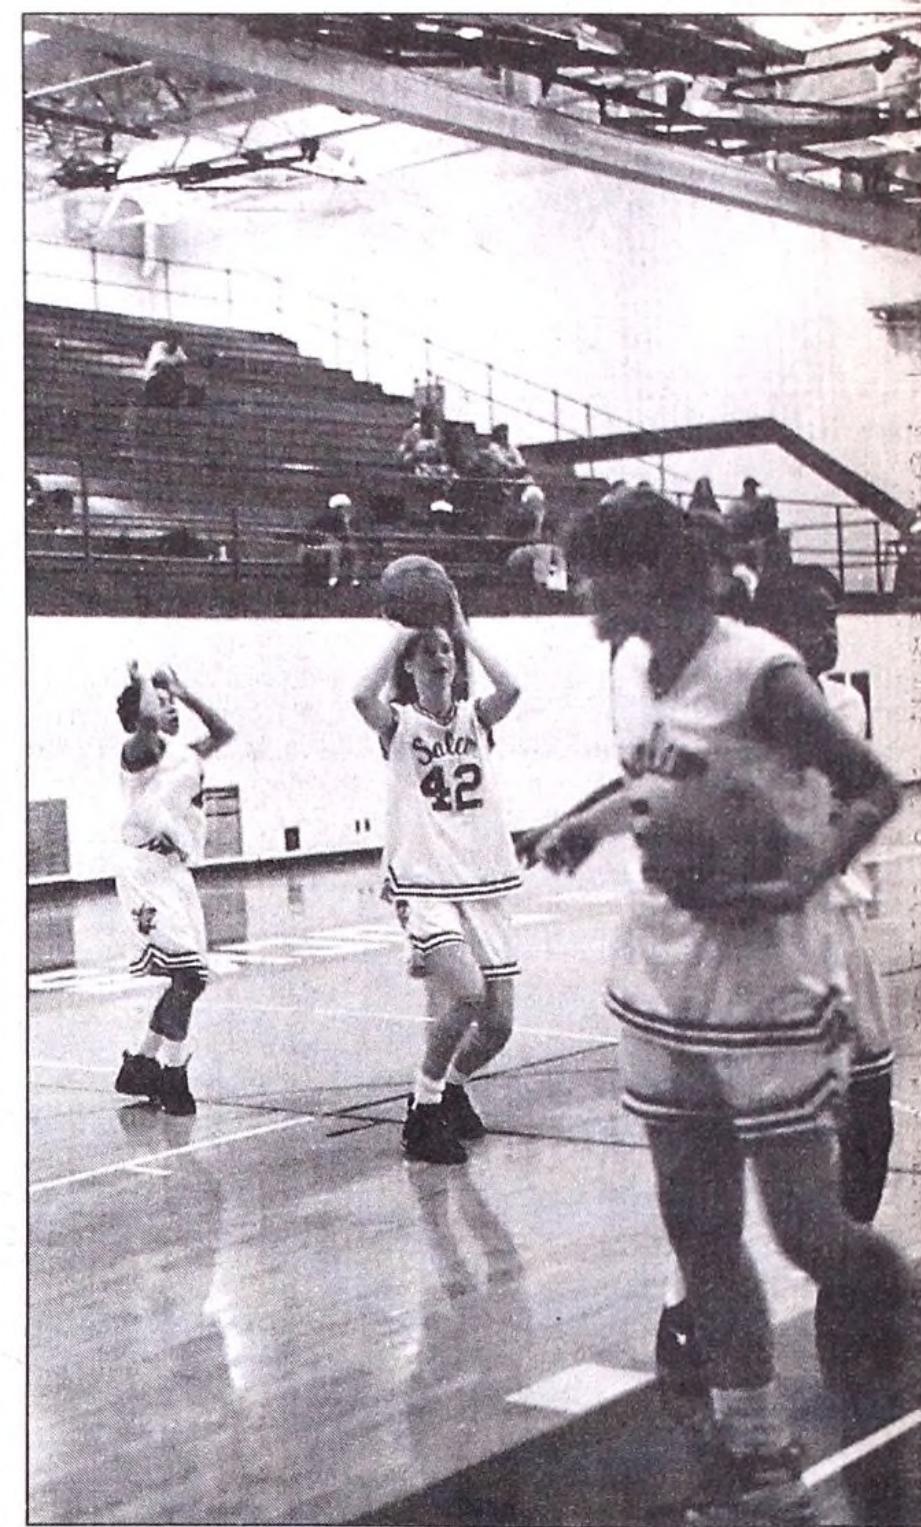

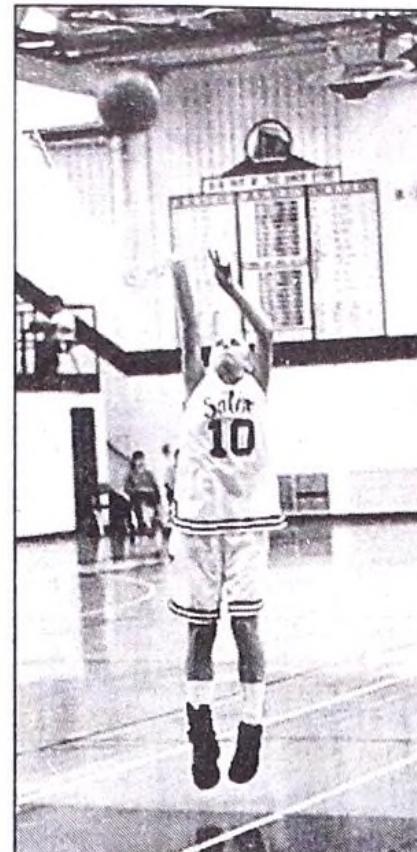

Of course, Salem wasn't just sitting back and taking it. They scored eight points of their own.

With 1:27 to go, Salem was ahead 48-43. Adams attempted three 3 point shots, but missed on each.

Salem Senior, Nicole Van Hees sealed the scoring with a foul shot.

The final score was 51-45.

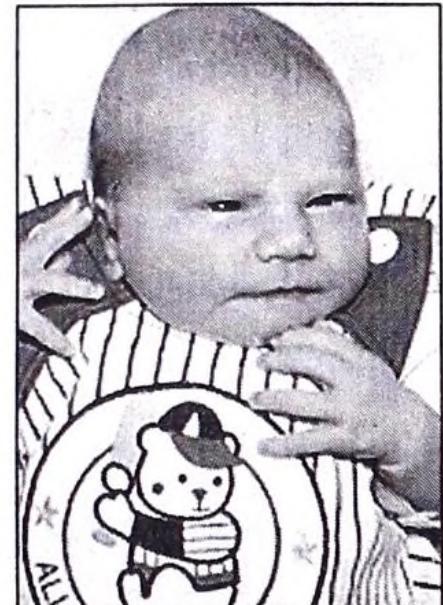

Scoring for Salem was done by Pruitt (18), Sills (16), Janelle Sterling (7), Van Hees (5), Abraham (4) and Angela Silmon (1).

Plants flourish

Sunflowers reach new heights this summer in residents' gardens

By JOAN DYER-ZINNER
MCN Managing Editor

When we started keeping statistics on locally grown sunflowers, we thought a 10-foot-tall flower was a huge one.

Michigan Community Newspapers initiated a contest to find the tallest sunflower in Western Wayne County, and we were amazed at the number of entries which arrived at our office.

First, we heard about eight-foot sunflowers and then we received calls about nine-foot ones.

Later, we were amazed at the number of 10-foot-tall-plus flowers we encountered and then astonished when he heard about 11-foot and 12-foot sunflowers.

But, we hadn't heard "nothing yet" until Brenda Laginess of Haggerty Road in Belleville called us about her 15-foot sunflower — a flower so tall that it just couldn't be topped.

Why we wondered, has this past summer produced so many tall sunflowers?

Jan Reese of Keller & Stein Florist and Greenhouse in Canton has the answer — heat.

"We had a very hot summer, and heat makes cells elongate," Reese said. "If the flowers were well watered, they would grow well."

For next year, she offers some tips.

"Plant a Russian Mammoth or one of the other hybrids that grows very tall. Then, give it plenty of water and hope that the weather is a hot next summer as it was this year," Reese said.

On Thursday and Friday, Weatherman Al (Post) drove around the Western Wayne County area checking on the height of sunflowers, looking for one that equalled or surpassed the 16-foot-tall sunflower in Belleville.

He stopped at the home of Janet Dzibek of Prescott in Romulus to inspect her 11-foot-tall entry.

Dzibek got her seeds from a nursery and planted them in late May. She used plastic pails, with the bottoms cut out, to protect the growing plants and hold extra water, and also fertilized periodically.

Janet McCoolum of Inkster planted her sunflowers in late May along with many other varieties. She reported that she had more problems with squirrels than birds while the plants were growing. McCoolum will feed the seeds to the birds and small animals this winter, she said.

Diane Dailey of Romulus grew sunflowers, other flowers and vegetables in her garden this summer — her first gardening effort. Her sunflower grew just two inches short of 10 feet.

Other gardeners whose entries topped nine feet were:

- Dorothy Stillwagon of Bidle, Romulus
- Linda Markus, Miriam, Romulus
- Rhonda Farless, Wayne
- Daniel Tamaroglio of Westland
- Mike Voelker of Willis
- Jane Kovach of Belleville
- Cathy Houston of Westland
- Sandra Wilson of Westland
- Brad Payzant of Belleville
- Gloria Dougherty of Belleville
- Wardell Reynolds of Inkster
- Cindy Begarowicz of Westland
- Norman Rahn of Dearborn and Colorado Blue Spruce.

"These trees were selected to provide benefits every season of the year: lovely spring flowers, cool summer shade, spectacular autumn colors, and winter berries and nesting sights for song birds," John Rosenow, the Foundation's president, said.

The trees will be shipped post paid at the right time for planting between Oct. 15 and Dec. 10 with enclosed planting instructions. The six to twelve inch trees are guaranteed to grow or they will be replaced free of charge.

Members also receive a subscription to the Foundation's colorful bimonthly publication, Arbor Day, on Arbor Day Foundation Wall calendar, and The Tree Book with information about tree planting and care.

To become a member of the Foundation and to receive the free trees, send $10 membership contribution to Ten Trees, National Arbor Day Foundation, 100 Arbor Avenue, Nebraska City, Neb. 68410.

Engine propels 1995 Probe to perfection

By JUSTIN WILCOX
MCN Automotive Writer

The world is full of little front-wheel drive sports coupes that all claim to be the pick of the litter. So, what makes the 1995 Probe GT any different? Well, I am glad that you asked.... I can sum it up in one word - ENGINE.

The engine on this car combined with a five speed manual is the closest thing to driving perfection that you can find in this class of car.

I think so highly of this car that I drive a 1994 edition myself. This is where I can talk very specifically about the differences between the two.

To start with the 1995 now comes with a rear spoiler as an option, it has a newly designed five-spoke wheels, revised door panels and a new rear fascia.

One new addition to the interior that I found to be less than thrilling was the new fabric design. Let's just say that it looked like someone threw up in it. The interior remains spacious with a trunk area that is cavernous with the seats folded up and near truck-like with the seats down.

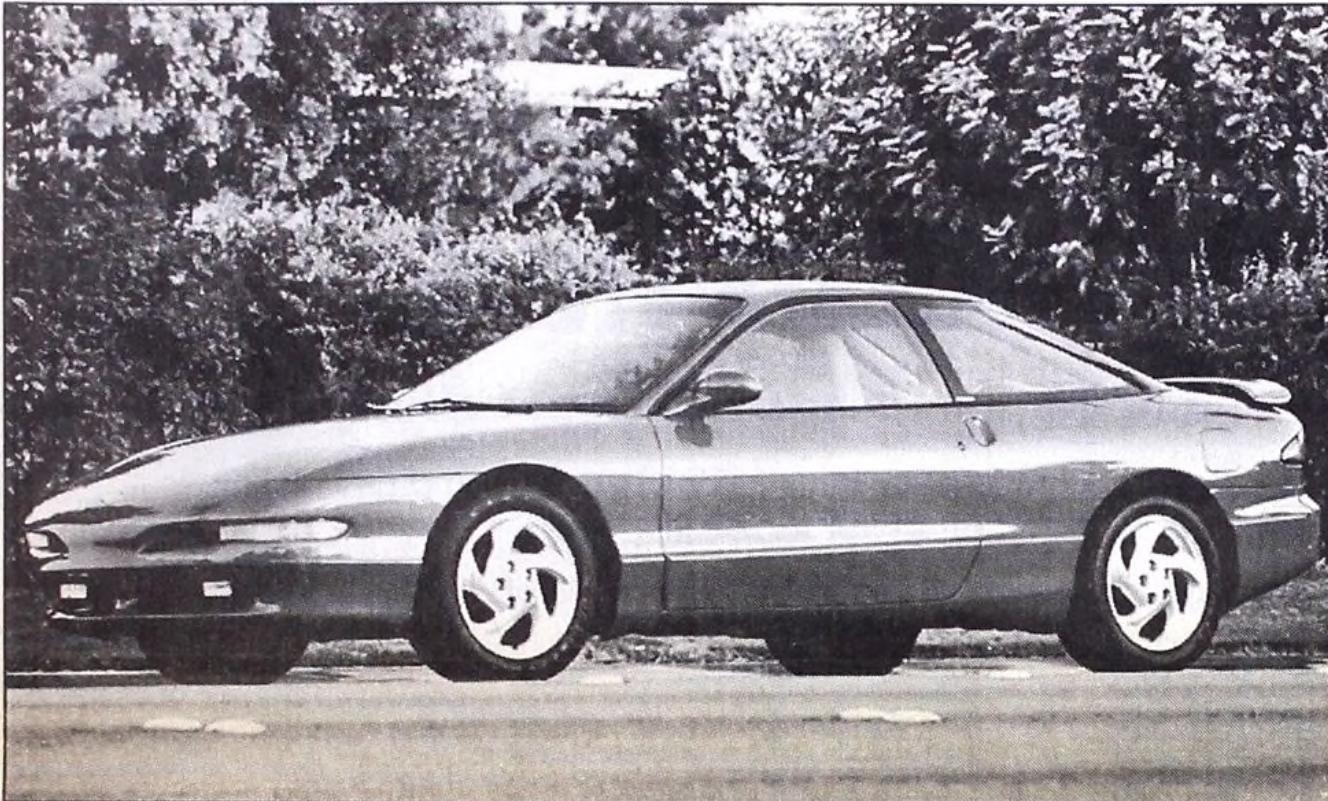

The minor improvements to the exterior are a welcomed sight. They freshen the looks of the car without compromising its smooth lines.

The standard Probe is powered by a 118-horsepower 2.0-liter 16 valve DOHC four cylinder engine. Probe GT's twin cam 2.5 liter 24 valve V6 engine, with cast aluminum block and cylinder heads, generates 164 horsepower.

For $19,215 the Probe GT comes equipped with air, a 5-speed manual transmission, tilt steering, rear window defroster, an AM/FM stereo with compact disc and 2.5 liter V6.

Some popular options include: anti-lock brakes, sunroof and power windows and locks. Although there are many others that may have better sticker prices, the Probe GT can be nicely optioned out for around twenty grand with all of the rebates that Ford is currently offering.

The car may not look like the best value on paper, but PLEASE do not discount it until you have the opportunity to drive it. This will be the factor that makes up your mind and puts a giant grin on your face. It does mine every day when I turn the key.....

'Road Map' campaign offers help for labels

According to results of a consumer survey conducted by the Council on Family Health, consumers may not be aware of the information available on over-the-counter (OTC) medicine labels.

While most consumers are satisfied with the information provided on OTC medicine labels, 28 percent said that medicine labels do not tell them everything they need to know about taking medicines. However, the "missing" elements survey participants indicated they would like to see on the label — ingredients, indications, etc. — already appear on all medicine labels.

"Everything consumers need to know about taking medicines is included on current nonprescription medicine labels," said William I. Bergman, president of the Council on Family Health. "However, consumers may need additional assistance in order to understand that the information is available and how to use it."

To provide this assistance, the Council has launched an educational campaign to help consumers understand and take full advantage of all the information contained on medicine labels.

The Council's "Road Map" brochure advises consumers to locate, read and understand the following key medicine label elements before taking or administering any medicine:

- Indications for use explains which conditions the products should be used to treat.

- Directions and dosage provide instructions for how to take the medicine, how much to take, and how often to take it.

- Warnings lists conditions under which the medicine should not be used, possible side effects, limitations on product use, conditions under which a doctor should be seen, and what to do in case of accidental overdose.

- Drug interaction precautions advise consumers not to take the medicine, or to consult a doctor before taking it, if they currently are taking certain medications or have an existing medical condition. It also includes warning to alert individuals that consuming certain foods or beverages while taking a specific medicine may cause unintentional results.

- Listing of Alcohol alerts consumers of the product's alcohol content.
